English Consistency.

The English Government is very much exercised at the thought of Irishmen entering the Union armies Lord Brougham has recently depicted in the House of Lords the heinous offense of which the Federal Government is guilty in accepting the services of any foreigners or Europeans, as soldiers in our army He calls the permission granted by our Government for their voluntary enlistment "a flagrant infraction of neutrality Speaking of the U. S Government, this exponent of national ethics says "They were taking men, who by entering into their service became guilty of an offense severely punished in this country For these men were criminals, it is true, they were guilty of a misdemeanor only, by the last Foreign Enlistment Act of 1819, but in the reign of George II, it was at one time a capital felony These men were still criminals, and the United States Government employed them, knowing them to be criminals for it was only as criminals that they could enter into their service" If these Irishmen, coming from England and enlisting in the armies of the Union are thereby extra-judicially pronounced criminals what should Lord Brougham say of the English men, who while in a home port, enlisted on board the Alabama and without ever having entered or seen a port of the States in rebellion, entered upon a two years' service of piracy? Were they criminals? They were received and honored in nearly every British port of note around the globe while in the pursuit of their piratical enterprise They never were molested Those stolen by the Alabama's tender—the Deerhound—and taken to an English port—were they arrested and treated as criminals? Not a bit of it They were in the service of their country—striving regardless of cost or sacrifice to establish anarchy and aristocracy in the place of republican government When it was supposed that the surgeon of the Alabama had sacrificed himself in the service of the wounded on board the sinking pirate, the London Times proposed the erection of a splendid monument to the memory of this "brave son of an English Church Rector"

Earl Russell followed the "Noble Lord" in the discussion and after a most affecting description of the manner in which the Irish laborers enlisted in our army, uses this language

One of these men who had been an hospital invalid and had escaped, and related his story to Lord Lyons, explained the way in which he had been forced and coerced, and how, to escape confinement he had consented to enlist Lord Lyons remonstrated on the subject and I think it is highly discreditable to the United States Government to their civil as well as their military authorities, that they did not immediately institute an inquiry into the facts mentioned by Lord Lyons, that they did not bring all these men to Washington and unless they had been enlisted fairly and honestly discharge them My noble friend says that if those remonstrances are neglected it is a case of war, and that if we do not go to war when remonstrances of this kind are not attended to, when are we to go to war? No doubt, if acts of injustice are continually repeated they do lead to great irritation and possibly to war I think it is the bounden duty of the American Government to attend to remonstrances of this kind [Hear, Hear]

This is choice and elegant language for the "illustrious Earl" to use in the House of Lords He accepts as true the statements and apology of a cowardly deserter, takes it for granted that the whole United States should be held responsible for a failure to discharge every white-livered numbskull who becomes tired of the service in our army and prates of war! He thinks "it is the bounden duty of the American Government to attend to remonstrances of this kind" He did not think it the bounden duty of his own government to attend to the remonstrances of our accredited Minister at the Court of Great Britain against the building, arming manning and sailing of vessels to be engaged in the rebellion He is perfectly willing to furnish men means and encouragement to the South in their attempt to destroy our country but it must not be defended by any man who comes from Europe to make his home and his fortune in our midst "O consistency, thou art indeed a jewel"—a veritable Irish diamond

Grand Union Demonstration at St Helens A correspondent writing from St Helens says that on the 23d ult., a grand demonstration was had upon the occasion of a speech by Hon George L Woods. The Copperheads made several efforts at confusion by propounding interrogations to the speaker, who used them up most effectually Mr Woods made an eloquent appeal in behalf of Lincoln and Johnson and convinced even the majority of the opposition of their error Many of the citizens of Clark county were present and all entered with enthusiasm into the spirit of his patriotic and well timed address We would gladly publish the remarks as sent by our correspondent, but its length prevents

Oregon Conference—We have received from Rev C C Stratton, Secretary of the Oregon Conference, the following resolutions which were adopted and requested to be published in the Oregonian

Whereas In the Mountaineer, of August 12th 1864, and in the Arena of July 25th, 1864, certain statements are made in regard to the moral character of Rev Thomas H Pearne, Therefore

Resolved, That it is the sense of this Conference that the statements and insinuations in the Mountaineer and Arena, in reference to the moral character of Rev T. H. Pearne are abusive and slanderous, and should meet with the most unqualified condemnation of every lover of truth and justice

LATER FROM THE EAST.

Dates to September 1.

New York, Aug 27—The work of destroying the Weldon railroad is still progressing Officers from the front report all quiet except slight skirmishing Lee's forces have evidently been materially reduced during the past few days A new position has been gained on the Weldon railroad which renders Grant's army more confident of success than at any time during the campaign

Headquarters Army of the Potomac Aug 24—Evening—All quiet to day except the usual cannonading Our left has been extended six or seven miles holding securely the Weldon road to Reams Station a distance seven miles No rebels are to be seen on our left front

The entire loss of the 5th corps on the 21st was 5 000 The corps fought splendidly

The Commercial's special says Hancock reports a loss of two batteries Other accounts say he lost 14 guns

The following is official

The 2d army corps on the 26th made an attack at 5 30, P M which was probably intended to be simultaneous by Wilcox in the centre and Heath on the left The enemy formed in the woods and placing their artillery in position opened a heavy cannonading which lasted 15 minutes when assault was made on Miles force He resisted tenaciously but the enemy broke his left Some of Gibbon's troops hurried over to repair the damage In the meantime the enemy gained a foothold and attempting to turn our left drove Gibbon's division from his line His men were very tired in marching over to Miles position and back during the repeated assaults, but he succeeded in reforming his line and checked the enemy by the dismounted cavalry under Gregg Miles also regained the best of his intrenchments The enemy made no further advance They must have suffered severely My loss, including cavalry cannot exceed 1 200 or 1 500 This is acknowledged to be the most desperate battle of the war resembling Spottsylvania though the number engaged give less importance A few more good troops would have given us a victory of considerable importance

(Signed) HANCOCK

A dispatch from the 2d corps on the 26th says The safeguard left on the battlefield remained there until after daylight At that time the enemy had all disappeared leaving the dead on the field unburied This shows how severely they were punished Doubtless hearing of the arrival of reinforcements they feared the results of to-day

(Signed) MEADE

The safeguard referred to reports the enemy as having retired in the direction of Petersburg They abandoned their wounded The guard conversed with a rebel officer who said their loss was greater than ever before during the war The guard say they were over the field. It is covered with the enemy's dead and wounded

Boston Aug. 26—Several prominent Abolitionists including Elizur Wright and S G Howe, have written a letter to Gen Fremont, which speaks of the dissatisfaction in the Union ranks and advising both the Baltimore and Cleveland nominees to withdraw their names and that a new Convention be called to select another and a new candidate Fremont replied at length that he did not feel at liberty to withdraw without first consulting the party He suggests that a direct effort be made to obtain an immediate understanding between the supporters of both nominees in order that they may coalesce and unite upon such a convention He says, much has been said about peace, for me, peace signifies an integral establishment of a Union without slavery, because slavery is the source of all political dissentions and because the institution itself is condemned by the enlightened and liberal spirit of the age These are to me the essential conditions of peace

New York Aug. 27—The Times Washington dispatch says that a gentleman arrived in this city from Georgia who came by Atlanta with the permission of Sherman He represents that the State Government desires to learn upon what basis the United States Government will treat with the State of Georgia for readmission into the Union The action of Georgia is had without reference to the rest of the Confederacy

New York Aug. 29—The Tribune's Washington special sums up the results of the fighting on Weldon Railroad as follows

1st The enemy after repeated and impetuous assaults compelled our abandoning the railroad below Reams' Station

2d Although attacking in vastly superior numbers, the rebels received a bloody repulse in successive instances

3d Their loss is nearly double ours and we had fully accomplished our object by the destruction of ten miles of the Railroad from Reams' Station but had decided to abandon the position We lost but four miles of the road

Richmond papers of the 26th admit a loss of 6,000 in the attack on Reams' Station

Prisoners say the loss is about 5 000

Another attack is soon expected Lee having recalled the troops from Shenandoah valley for that purpose

The indications are that a heavy battle will be fought near Atlanta, on the Macon Railroad before the end of the present week

Nashville, Aug, 30—It is rumored that Wheeler's cavalry, numbering 8 000 with 12 guns is advancing on Nashville They are near McMinville, and are advancing towards Murfreesboro Great excitement prevails but no apprehensions need be felt. No reports from Sherman

Dispatches from Lebanon to half past eight this morning say that Gen Mulligan is in Wheeler's hands

Louisville, Aug 30—It is reported that Wheeler, with his entire force has appeared behind the Cumberland river, three miles below Gallatin captured a company of Federals and were attempting to cross the river this morning for an advance on Gallatin

Marysville, (Cal) Sept 2—Private dispatches quote gold in New York, on the 30th, at 232½ (Uncle Sam is paying coupons) On the 31st gold opened at 239 and closed at 235

Washington Sept 1—The War Department has received General Canby's official report, which is as follows

New Orleans, Aug 24—Fort Morgan surrendered unconditionally yesterday at 2 P M About 200 prisoners, 80 pieces of artillery and a large quantity of material were captured In 12 hours preceding the surrender 2 000 shells were thrown into the Fort The citadel and barracks were entirely destroyed The works generally are much injured Many of the guns are spiked and their carriages burned, and much ammunition was destroyed by the rebels Our loss was one killed and seven wounded

(Signed) CANBY

Nothing has been received from Grant Sheridan or Sherman

(Signed) STANTON

Washington Aug 30—Sheridan, with his force is still at Charlestown

No operations have taken place in front of Petersburg since my last telegram

(Signed) STANTON

New York Aug 31—Dispatches from Grant indicate that Lee has ceased to struggle for the recovery of Weldon Railroad which is completely in our possession

No fighting occurred yesterday or to day before Petersburg or front

Early's forces are in full retreat up the valley and our cavalry are closely pursuing in the rear of the retreating column, and are capturing many stragglers

New York, Aug 31—The Herald's Beaufort correspondence of the 27th says

Midnight, Aug 25—Capt Phelan, of the gun boat Monticello, cruised off New Inlet and discovered a steamer standing for the shore under a full head of steam After challenging twice and receiving no answer, he directed a nine inch grape shot to be fired into the mysterious stranger which was returned with shell of a large calibre passing between the foremast and mainmast and exploding on the other side without doing any damage whatever

Phelan sent a 30 pounder shell which occasioned a reply of grape, striking almost under the stern of the Monticello, which then opened a 9 inch and 30 pounder shells, receiving no shots in return It was discovered that the stranger had disappeared During the engagement the rebel battery with Whitworth guns, a mile distant on shore kept up a constant fire doing no damage Day dawned when we discovered the steamer Tallahassee securely lying under the guns of Fort Fisher

Gen. Lee designs taking all possible precautions to-morrow and visits the blockade off Wilmington

A few nights ago a large and fast steamer carrying at her stern the English colors entered Wilmington She is supposed to be a new cruiser and had on board distinguished and welcomed passengers

The Tallahassee had but one mast standing when seen by the Monticello

Proceedings of the Chicago Convention.

Chicago Aug 31—The Democratic Wigwam was again densely crowded to day The crowd outside was even greater than before The Convention was called to order at ten The proceedings were opened with prayer

Wickliffe, of Ky, said the delegates of the North west were of the opinion that circumstances may occur between this and the 4th of March by which it will be necessary for Delegates to meet in Convention therefore moved the Convention should not be dissolved by adjournment but remain subject to the call of the Executive Committee

A communication was read from the Democratic National Committee embodying the resolutions adopted by that Committee in substance as follows

It is the deliberate conviction of the committee that had the life of Stephen A Douglas been spared his gigantic grasp of mind taken in connection with his declaration that war is disunion would long since have restored the power of the Federal compact and avoided the terrible loss of life for which nothing can compensate

The President stated the question to be ordering the previous question which was ordered without a dissenting vote

The vote was taken by states, the chairman of each delegation announcing When the States were called—Connecticut and Ohio having been passed for the moment—the vote stood 162 for McClellan the remainder scattering. Here the different delegations began to change their votes The final result was as follows

Maine 7 New Hampshire 5 Vermont 5 Massachusetts 12 Rhode Island 4 Connecticut 6 New York 33 New Jersey 7 Pennsylvania 26—for McClellan Delaware 1 for T. H Seymour Maryland 7 for Seymour Kentucky 11 for McClellan Ohio 8 for McClellan and 6 for Seymour Indiana 9½ for McClellan and 3½ for Seymour Illinois 16 for McClellan Michigan 8 for McClellan Missouri 7 for McClellan and 4 for Seymour Minnesota 4 for McClellan Wisconsin 8 for McClellan Iowa 8 for McClellan Kansas 3 for McClellan California 5 for McClellan Oregon 3 for McClellan Total for McClellan 202½ Seymour 23½ Several delegations having cast their votes for Horatio Seymour during the call of the States he remarked Some gentlemen had done him an honor to name him in connection with the nomination it would be affectation to say the expression of preference did not give him pleasure but he owed it to himself to say that many months ago he advised his friends in New York for various reasons private and public that he could not be a candidate Having made the announcement it would do great injustice to those friends to allow his name to be used now After some further remarks he announced the vote of his State which was received with tremendous applause the delegates and audience rising to their feet. The cheers continued several minutes

Vallandigham getting the floor said From first to last we have been animated by one sentiment in the Convention and that was Peace To the end there may be "Peace" in the land he moved the nomination of McClellan be declared unanimous

McKeon of New York seconded the motion and remarked We are in the midst of a bloody revolution If the present Administration continue no man of note here would be safe either in his liberty or life He exhorted all to join with one heart as one man in efforts overthrow the Administration

Powell of Ky briefly addressed the Convention pledging his most earnest endeavors to secure the success of the ticket expressing a firm conviction that the ticket will come out of the contest triumphant, with the liberties of the people restored the prosperity and happiness of the country secured

Other prominent gentlemen followed in brief speeches, reviewing the history of the country under Democratic rule in comparison with the acts of the present Administration and promising a return to lasting peace and national happiness with the success of McClellan

The question was then taken up making the nomination unanimous carried

The announcement was followed by deafening shouts and cheers from the delegates and the audience

Wickliffe of Ky, offered a resolution to the effect that Kentucky expects that the first act of McClellan when elected will be the opening of Lincoln's prison doors and setting the captives free Carried unanimously

Wickliffe said that many of the most loyal citizens of Kentucky, among them twenty or thirty ladies, are now in prison at Louisville, confined in damp dirty cells which only straw to lay upon and the commonest prison fare The Louisville papers are forbidden to make the slightest allusion to the terrible states of affairs He now proclaimed it at the risk of liberty and perhaps of life

Cox of Ohio to proceed to the nomination of Vice President carried

George H Pendleton of Ohio Voorhies of Indiana, Cass, of Pennsylvania, Guthrie of Kentucky Dodge, of Iowa Phelps, of Missouri and Caton of Illinois were put in nomination

First ballot—Guthrie 65½ Pendleton 54 Voorhies 13, Cass, 26 Dodge 9 Caton 11 Powell 32½ Phelps, 8 blank ½

Second ballot—when New York was called Judge Parker said that having cast 32½ votes for Powell against his wishes, he now cheerfully gave them to Pendleton

All other candidates were then withdrawn and Pendleton received the unanimous vote

A committee of one from each State was appointed to inform the candidates of their nomination and request an acceptance

Tilden, of New York moved that the same ratio of representation that had prevailed in this convention should prevail in the next Motion adopted

On motion

Resolved That the Democracy in the country be requested to meet at different cities and hold mass meetings on the 17th of September the anniversary of the adoption of the Federal Constitution by the United States

After a vote of thanks to the officers and nine cheers and tiger for the ticket the Convention adjourned, subject to the call of the National Committee

New York Sept 1—Gold ranges from 242½ to 248

Arrived—Cl e Moulr 150 days from Liverpool Susan Blaisdell 150 days from Newport England with cargo of railroad iron

The Paper Question—The Alta contains an article on the paper question, in which it recommends that journal publishers take into consideration the possibility of obtaining their paper from China and Japan at much less rates than eastern paper can be bought at, There are two or three paper mills in California but it seems they cannot be depended on for a regular supply because their power often fails them Says the Alta

The value of newspaper annually imported at San Francisco is about $150 000 The sizes imported are chiefly 32x46 inches, 28x42 inches and 24x36 inches The largest size we give about 50 pounds to the ream of 480 sheets and is worth here from $9 to $10 a ream The proportion of weight and price is about the same for the smaller sizes China and Japan produce immense quantities of paper and could send on all that we want Whether they could give us paper suitable for newspaper at a less price than that paid for the eastern article is a question worthy of careful investigation Transportation from China is more speedy and freight cheaper than from New York

Saturday Night—A great proportion of the laboring population of Portland are kept so busy during the week that they are scarcely seen on the streets until Saturday night, when they swarm, and in many parts of the city seem to appear suddenly as if dropped from the clouds or coming from some unknown region The grocery stores receive a new impetus Saturday nights, the barber shops are more thronged people give up to rest and in this respect the character of older Eastern cities is much portrayed The pleasures however, of a mixed population are varied and the groceryman is not alone the patronized There is no small number who have no foresight, take no thought for the future, and only labor to get the means of sustenance waking up every Monday morning after a protracted spree without a cent in their pockets The more refined enjoyments of life the delights of cultivated female society the pleasures and purifying influences of a home, that indefinable feeling of independence which lends a tone to the very air that surrounds one's own hearthstone are to them contained in a sealed book Industry, economy and thrift are words without meaning the method of acquiring capital which when acquired, will multiply itself in geometrical ratio is unknown, and without an object, hope or a desire in the future they live on varying in the monotony by fiery draughts when the routine of the week is over But a lecture on morality is not our purpose it might be much easier delivered than practiced yet to close this paragraph we will show how many a fortune goes off annually in drinks in Portland to say nothing of what goes off in smoke There are fifty two saloons in the city where liquors are retailed at from 10 to 25 cents per drink The daily average each is $20—aggregating $1,040 this for 300 days amounts to the snug little sum of $312,000 contributed for one year It may be estimated that the receipts of nearly every second class saloon in the city from Saturday night until Monday morning, are greater than the amount taken in throughout the balance of the week

Willamette Theatre—A fine Minstrel Troupe arrived by the steamship Brother Jonathan last evening and intend to give us a foretaste of the holidays and treats of the amusements season at the Willamette Theatre this evening The names associated in the bill will not discredit the public but deserving of patronage Julia Morgan Minnie Laurens Frank Hussey J McFarland W C Morgan and others compose the troupe Their names have preceded them and we feel safe in assuring the patrons of the play that one of the cleverest, richest and most humorous Minstrel entertainments ever offered on Portland boards will be to night Being Saturday night we cannot expect more than that the Theatre building will be over crowded Go early

Fatal Accident—We are pained to learn of an occurrence that happened yesterday, resulting in the death of William Abraham, son of James Abraham, living at Mount Tabor in this county The youth had taken a shot gun and was proceeding to the woods in company with a man when he stumbled and fell discharging the contents of the gun in his abdomen, death ensuing in a very short time Willie was aged about 14 years We shall miss him, he was a regular applicant at our office on Saturdays for the Weekly, an apt and sprightly lad But to-day he is gone!

Funeral of Mr Going—The Mechanics' Brass Band and a large concourse of citizens turned out yesterday to pay their last respects to Mr Daniel W Going who died of consumption at the house of his brother in this city on Thursday evening last. The cortege headed by the Band of which deceased was an active member when living started from the Howard House on Front street following up Vine and First thence down Stark to the ferry and across to the East cemetery The obsequies were performed by Rev Mr Ryland

Remembered Us—Charles Barrett at a late hour last night laid upon our table a fresh and liberal supply of reading matter comprising Godey's and Peterson's Magazines, bound illustrated papers of late date for which he has our thanks He has a large and well assorted supply for sale at either of his two stores

Military Preparations—We see that Mr Currier, the merchant tailor, in the Dennison House block has completed the military parade dresses of Major General Palmer and staff for the fall parade The garments are made of the best materials and in the best style of the art Mr C is certainly qualified, if any man is to make good clothing, and we can recommend his work and prices to all.

From Illinois—The steamer Wilson G. Hunt brought to this Valley last evening six wagons, with four families, who come from the prairies of the Sucker State to build homes for themselves in our midst They bring with them superior stock, fine mules and horses and the wealth of the State is much enhanced by their arrival

Important Sale—Attention is directed to the sale of real property of the Eunice Carruthers estate to-day The opportunities for purchasing desirable homesteads are perhaps the best in accordance with this notice that can ever be offered to a Portland public. Sale to commence on the premises at 10 o'clock A M

The Rival—This steamer was delayed over time last evening in consequence of increased freight. She brought in addition, a large barge loaded with cobble stones, from Clackamas rapids. The dam at the mouth of Clackamas river is not yet entirely removed from the Willamette.

Special Contract Law.

We publish the following opinion of one of the members of the California Supreme Court, which coincides with the judgment of the majority, and also suggests very pertinently some of the arguments, which control the decision of the Court

I entered upon the consideration of the questions involved in this case not without grave doubts as to the validity of the Specific Contract Law, for when we hold the Act making treasury notes a legal tender in payment of all debts public and private, to be constitutional, it seemed to follow as a logical consequence that if an agreement to pay a given sum of money in gold coin is a debt within the meaning of the law, then the debtor is entitled to discharge it by paying the amount called for in treasury notes And this would be true in relation to all debts created generally without any limiting or qualifying term in the contract creating the liability. In such a case the law has given to the debtor his option to elect which kind of money made by law a legal tender he will adopt in discharging his liability. It is a right or privilege conferred on him of which he can not be deprived except with his consent. But a right or privilege conferred upon an individual either by constitutional or statutory law may be waived by the party interested unless such waiver would contravene public policy. Such is the case even in criminal law. Natural persons of full age, of sound mind and under no recognized legal disabilities, are endowed with an unlimited capacity to contract with other persons similarly situated, in all things except as to those matters which are against public policy or prohibited by law. Gambling contracts, contracts for the payment of money in consideration of future cohabitation in state of concubinage and the like, are prohibited as being contrary to good morals and the best interests of society. In some States usurious contracts are contrary to public policy and are prohibited. But there is nothing in a contract for a sufficient consideration to pay a given sum in gold coin or any other kind of money, that is immoral or that in any respect contravenes public policy. It has never been prohibited either expressly or by implication and no policy against the making of such contracts has in any manner been indicated on the part of the Government. The Government has created three kinds of money, which it has provided shall be legal tender in the payment of debts—gold coin, treasury notes and silver coin in limited amounts—but it has nowhere intimated, in the remotest degree, a preference for any one of these kinds of money over the others or any desire that debts should be paid in any one rather than the other, but has left it to the parties interested to act as their own interests may dictate. Neither, so far as we have been able to discover, has there been any restriction placed upon the capacity or right of parties to contract with reference to these several kinds of currency or to other species of property, other than is hereinafter specified.—On the contrary, the law expressly recognizes contracts for the delivery of gold coin.

The Act of March 3 1863 amending the Act to provide for internal revenue, etc, provides "that all contracts for the purchase or sale of gold or silver coin, or bullion, and all contracts for the loan of money or currency, secured by pledge or deposit, or other disposition of gold or silver coin of the United States if to be performed after a period exceeding three days, shall be in writing or printed, and signed by the parties, or their agents or attorneys and shall have one or more adhesive stamps, as provided in the Act to which this is an amendment * * * "And no loan of currency or money on the security of gold or silver coin of the United States as aforesaid, or of any certificate or other evidence of deposit payable in gold or silver coin, shall be made exceeding in amount the par value of the coin pledged or deposited as security and any such loan so made, or attempted to be made, shall be utterly void" * * * * * * "That all contracts, loans or sales of gold and silver coin and bullion not made in accordance with the Act, shall be wholly and absolutely void

Here is an Act of Congress upon the subject of the purchase and sale of gold coin which recognizes the validity of such contracts and regulates the mode of making them It only prescribes that in all cases where more than three days shall elapse between the time of making the contract and its fulfillment, the contract shall be written or printed and signed by the parties and shall have one or more adhesive stamps. Upon well settled rules of construction, all such contracts made in conformity with the provisions of this Act and also all contracts of sale or purchase not having three days to run, are valid This is the only limitation or restriction upon the power of parties to contract for the payment or sale and delivery of coin. When it comes to a loan of currency or money on the security of gold or silver coin, or of any certificate or other evidence of deposit payable in gold or silver coin, the law prescribes that the amount of the loan shall not exceed the par value of the coin But no restriction as to price is imposed upon the sale or purchase of or any other dealings in coin. Of course if contracts in regard to coin are permitted by the law, those contracts must be valid, and the law contemplates that the contracts will be fulfilled according to their terms

So also the Act to provide ways and means for the support of the Government, passed March 3, 1863, provides "that the secretary of the Treasury is hereby authorized to receive deposits of gold coin and bullion with the Treasurer and Assistant Treasurer of the United States, in sums not less than twenty dollars, and issue certificates therefor in denominations of not less than twenty dollars each, corresponding with the denominations of United States notes The coin and bullion deposited for or representing the certificates of deposit shall be retained in the treasury for the payment of the same on demand"

For the convenience of the people, the Government consents to become a depository of their coin when desired by the owner; and upon a deposit of gold coin the Treasurer is authorized to issue a certificate of deposit to the owner payable in gold coin. The coin thus deposited is not to be used but is to be "retained in the treasury for the payment" of the certificate, on demand Why not pay it in treasury notes? Simply because it was deposited upon an agreement at the time that it should be returned in coin and common honesty demands that the contract should be fulfilled The Government would get no coin deposited in its treasury upon any other terms, hence, when it undertook to become a depository of coin for its citizens it was necessary to do as other bankers or persons receiving deposits do—enter into a contract to return the deposit in like funds. These certificates go into circulation in the place of the coin and become subjects of commercial and financial transactions. The Government in these acts recognizes the propriety of such transactions. And why should not a banker, in the absence of any law prohibiting such transactions, not received gold coin on deposit, and when he has done so, and issued a certificate showing the fact and agreeing in consideration thereof to repay the same in gold coin not be bound by his contract? And why should not a party who has borrowed gold coin on the faith of his agreement to return the loan in like kind be required to perform his solemn obligation? Good faith and good morals demand it. No law prohibits it, or prohibits making such contracts the Government has made no discrimination through the law making power in favor of one kind of money against another. It makes such contracts itself with the citizen and expressly recognizes contracts between citizens for the purchase and sale of coin. The Government also requires certain portions of its revenues to be paid in coin, and thereby imposes on its citizens a necessity to procure it. No one disputes the right of a party to make all his business transactions upon a coin basis and to refuse to part with any piece of property or perform any service without requiring the coin in hand. If, to meet the necessities imposed on him by Government, or his convenience otherwise demands it, he may make a contract for coin, to be executed by delivering it at the time the contract is made why may he not make a similar contract providing for the anticipated emergency, to be executed in future when the emergency arises? And if he make the contract, why is he not entitled to have it enforced according to its terms?

We have seen that the Act of Congress permits a contract to sell and deliver gold coin on a future day. In what respect does an agreement, for a sufficient consideration to pay on some future day a given amount in gold coin, differ in principle from a contract to sell and deliver at a future day a like amount of gold coin? I can perceive none. The transactions in effect are substantially the same. Practically the party who agrees to sell and deliver coin at a future day does not agree to sell or deliver any specified piece or pieces of coin then in his possession, but he agrees to sell gold coin generally relying upon his ability to procure it when the time for fulfillment arrives. A contract payable in coin is substantially the same thing. The only difference is in the form of expressing the contract and not in the substance of it—the thing to be done. Such contracts do not appear to me to be against the policy of the law, for we have seen that the Act of Congress expressly recognizes and nowhere forbids them. Coin is lawful money. A party may lawfully pay his debts in coin. He may at his election, waive his right to pay in anything else, either with or without consideration. The only question is when he shall exercise his right to make his election to waive his privilege, and when he has made his election and inserted it as one of the essential terms and conditions of his contract, for a full and adequate consideration, there seems to be no good reason in morals or public policy why he should not be compelled to abide by his election and the express terms of his agreement. Such contracts, then, are valid.

But a contract to pay a sum of money in gold coin and a contract to sell and deliver coin at a future day create a debt in a general sense and in that respect stand on the same footing. But they do more. The party agreeing to pay or deliver gold coin at a future day not only creates a debt which he agrees to pay or discharge, but he also waives the privilege which the law would have guaranteed to him had he not voluntarily renounced it and taken upon himself an obligation to pay it in a specific kind of lawful money, and nothing else. This waiver and obligation are essential conditions and parts of the consideration of the contract, without which we must presume the contract would not have been made. The agreement to pay in coin is as much a part of the consideration as the agreement to pay at all, and the presumption is that an ample equivalent has been received for the promise. The parties then, are competent to contract—the contract is not against public policy—it is not prohibited by law—is payable in a lawful kind of money, and is a lawful contract

But in case of a breach, in judgment of the statute, there was no adequate remedy. It was not one of the cases in which Courts of equity were in the habit of granting relief although equity did grant relief by [illegible] but not all contracts in which the remedy at law was inadequate. And in a Court of law the only remedy was a suit for damages. But damages could only be estimated in dollars and cents, and in legal contemplation whatever the fact might be in the commercial world, a dollar in one kind of money was equivalent to a dollar in another. Hence, while in theory there was a remedy practically it was inadequate. There are many other cases in which parties who suffer from breaches in their contracts are without any adequate remedy. For instance, a merchant has [illegible] amount due him payable upon a given day upon which he relies to meet his [illegible] The debtor fails to pay at the time. The merchant in consequence fails to meet his own engagements, is attached, his business broken up and ruin is the result. The measure of damages in such cases, in a suit against his debtor, is only the money due and interest while the actual damages may be [illegible] times that amount. But this is the only remedy the law affords. In such cases and many others it would be impracticable to afford full relief. Many difficulties inherent in the nature of things exist, which conspire to prevent the granting of a full measure of relief and the law affords that measure of relief only which experience teaches [illegible] to be practicable, and [illegible] as a general rule [illegible] justice to all parties. [illegible] the remedy [illegible] a judgment and [illegible] specific performance. [illegible] by authorizing a judgment for the specific kind of money agreed to be paid and directs the execution to follow the judgment, and the Sheriff to sell property for and receive in satisfaction of the execution the kind of money which is provided for in the contract and judgment

I do not see wherein this law which only affords a remedy for a breach of contract lawful in itself is in any respect in conflict with the Act of Congress making treasury notes a legal tender in payment of debts. All contracts payable in money generally are undoubtedly payable in any kind of money made by law a legal tender at the option of the debtor at the time of payment. If [illegible] contracts [illegible] to pay so much money and creates a debt pure and simple and by paying what the law says is money the contract is performed. But if he agrees to pay in [illegible] coin it is not an agreement to pay money simply but to pay or deliver a specific kind of money and nothing else.

For these reasons, in addition to those contained in the able opinion of Mr Justice Currey I think the law relating to specific contracts valid, and that the judgment should be affirmed SAWYER J

It is well known that the medicinal effect of Protoxide of Iron is lost by even a very brief exposure to air, and that to maintain a solution of Protoxide of Iron, without further oxidation has been deemed impossible

In the Peruvian Syrup, this desirable point is attained by COMBINATION IN A WAY BEFORE UNKNOWN, and this solution may replace all the proto carbonates citrates and tartrates of the Materia Medica A A HAYES M D,

IODINE WATER.

IODINE WATER IS THE MOST IMPORTANT DIScovery of modern chemistry, and it is impossible to over-estimate its influence as a remedial agent Iodine has been considered the most useful article in Materia Medica, and many of the most scientific and practical chemists and physicians have investigated its effects upon the human system It is to act upon the

LIVER, KIDNEYS,

DIGESTIVE ORGANS AND GLANDULAR SYSTEM,

and to have great control over

SCROFULOUS AFFECTIONS.

Notwithstanding the zeal and ability which have been devoted to its investigation it remained almost useless until Dr Henry Anders, a physician and chemist of New York, after years of patient labor and experiment, discovered a chemical process which enabled him to dissolve

without a solvent. This considered impossible by the scientific world, is attested by certificates of analysis from Dr J R Chilton of this city, and Prof Booth U S Mint, Philadelphia The importance of this discovery was so highly appreciated by the Faculty that it was published in the Medical Journals, and its use recommended to practitioners (see "American Medical Monthly," July 6, 1850, page 70)

This valuable medicine is now available to the public for the cure of Scrofula in all its manifold forms Consumption, Cancer Heart, Liver and Kidney Diseases, Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Nervous Affections, Dyspepsia, Bronchitis, etc

AS A TONIC

Its operation is evinced by strengthening the digestive organs and increased nutrition of the body is the result of the employment of Iodine The patient recovers flesh, strength and color; hitherto pale, relaxed and feeble, he becomes full, strong and florid.
